Honored Citizens of Solebury awards presented at New Year’s Brunch

Each year the Solebury Township Historical Society recognizes residents, past and present, who have significantly contributed to the township. Chosen to receive the 2009 Honored Citizens of Solebury awards were Daniel Garber and Franca Warden.

Daniel Garber (1880-1958) was an American Impressionist landscape painter and a founding member of the art colony at New Hope. He is best known today for his large impressionist scenes of the New Hope area, in which he often depicted the Delaware River. In addition to his painting career, Garber taught art at the Pennsylvania Academy of the Fine Arts for over forty years. So deep was his love for this area that he once wrote, “To know me now you would have to know the place, everyone knows it’s half me.”

In 1907, on the advice of artist William Langson Lathrop, he settled at Cuttalossa Farm where he lived and worked until his untimely death in 1958 after falling from a ladder at his studio. Garber’s paintings are considered by collectors and art historians to be among the finest works produced from the New Hope art colony. His paintings are owned by major museums including the Smithsonian American Art Museum in Washington, DC, and the Art Institute of Chicago.

Garber was nominated for this award by Suzanne Lowe, who lives in the artist’s former home on Cuttalossa Road. The award was accepted by his granddaughter Dana Garber Applestein.

Franca Warden was born in Italy and has been a resident of Solebury Township since 1958. All her life she has worked tirelessly in support of the arts. She is a founding member and chairman emeritus of the of the Bucks County Opera Association, and she has actively pursued support for young singers through the Academy of Vocal Arts for more than 50 years.

Warden has been a member of the Board of Directors of the Solebury Township Historical Society for 8 years. She also serves on the Central Bucks Chamber’s visual arts committee and was honored with the Chamber’s Business & Arts Award in 2007. She continues to be involved in protecting the arts in her native Italy through the American-Italy Society and has worked on restoration projects in Venice, Assisi, and Florence.

At 80 years young, Franca inspires us all with her energy and commitment to the arts. Franca was nominated by her friend and former STHS president John Touhey.

The Society accepts nominations for the awards from the community throughout the year. Call 215-297-8447 or email soleburyhistory@comcast.net for a nomination form.

2009 – A Year of Growth

Now that we have all the essentials (the Schoolhouse and its archives) in place we now have the framework to grow. Mary-jo May, our newly hired Administrative Director, has been an invaluable asset. No task is too much for her to handle.

This year we will be reaching out to members who have checked “volunteer” on the membership form. A letter will be sent with a “survey of skills” form to be returned. We will then match skills with needs. By doing this we hope to launch programs that have previously been considered “wouldn’t it be nice if we could only . . .”

Donna Trenchard has joined our Board. Donna has been working with Joan Fitting for more then a year at the Schoolhouse. The Schoolhouse is now open to the public for research every Wednesday from 3 - 5 PM. We hope to be open more hours this coming year.

We have appointed David Benner as our “Resident Naturalist.” David is a retired professor at Delaware Valley College and is more then qualified for this task. During our spring and fall walks, David has accompanied us and taught us about various trees and fauna. He has taken it upon himself to locate and catalogue the major trees in our township and has reminded us that our history is also located in our natural surroundings. The huge white ash tree at the Marsh Gibbon farm comes to mind. It is a truly magnificent specimen that needs to be recorded. Hopefully we will find a photographer or photographers to assist David with the huge project.

Mary Powell and I met recently with the New Hope/Solebury Education Fund (NHSEF) (the “thermometer” outside the high school reflects their progress). We hope that our Education Committee can create a program of mutual interest. NHSEF awards grants to teachers who wish to, among other things, enhance community involvement and bring special programs into the school district.

We will be calling on all residents of Solebury to search for old photos that depict our history. I have recently visited with Mrs. LaRue whose family owned the LaRue Bottling works on Stoney Hill Rd. What wonderful stories she told about bottling soda and delivering it to small stores and farms. These treasured photos were scanned and returned to her. They are now saved and will be enjoyed by all.

We have created our 2009 Events Calendar (see back page), so please circle the dates on your calendar.

See you then,

Sally Grant-Jagoe, President

Beth Carrick, Vice-President
Elaine Crooks, Treasurer
Donneta Crane, Secretary
Mary Jackson Powell, Corresponding Secretary
Joan Fitting Patricia Petrie
Gwen Davis Rhoda Renschler
Don Harris Donna Trenchard
Martha Harris Franca Warden

Board Update

We are pleased to welcome Donna Trenchard to the STHS board. Born in New Jersey, Donna worked in human resources for Exxon-Mobil for 30 years. In 2006 she and Paul were married and moved to Solebury Township. They discovered the Historical Society and found it a great way to meet neighbors and to learn about their community. Donna began working with Joan Fitting on the Archives Committee when the Society moved into the Schoolhouse last year and has been a huge help in organizing our reference materials. She was elected to the board at our annual meeting in November. She serves on both the Archive and the Events Committees. Donna says she and Paul are very happy to call Solebury Township their home; we say we’re very happy to have her on “board.”
The Delaware Canal

In the early 1800’s, America was growing rapidly and business was booming. Poor roads and unnavigable rivers could no longer meet the young nation’s needs. Legislators and entrepreneurs looked to canals. These man-made waterways had been used successfully in Asia and Europe for centuries as a way to provide better, faster, and cheaper transportation.

Inspired by the tremendous success of New York state’s Erie Canal, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania began building a 1,200-mile system of canals to connect Philadelphia, Pittsburgh, and Lake Erie. These new transportation routes would carry the raw materials and manufactured products that would power this country’s industrial revolution.

The Delaware Canal is part of this great network. Completed in 1832, it runs for 58.9 miles from Bristol to Easton, where it connects with the Lehigh Canal. The primary purpose of these two waterways was to transport anthracite coal from the northeastern Pennsylvania coal regions to the cities on the eastern seaboard.

In the most productive years just prior to the Civil War, over 3,000 mule-drawn boats traveled up and down this route, moving over one million tons of coal a year. Smaller quantities of goods such as lumber, building stone, lime, and produce were also carried.

Life was hard for the men, women, and children who worked on the canals. A typical day started before 4 a.m. with the grooming and harnessing of the mule-team. It ended at 10 p.m. or later, when the lock tenders stopped operating the locks and the boats could go no further. A mule-powered boat loaded with 80 tons of cargo traveled 30 miles or more each day.

Over its course of 60 miles, the Delaware Canal drops 165 feet through some twenty-three locks. Ten aqueducts carry the waterway over small valleys and streams. Including its towpath and berm bank, the canal is approximately 60 feet wide and originally was five feet deep.

Times change

As railroads began to seriously compete for freight contracts, canal-generated revenues to the Commonwealth dropped. In 1858, the decision was made to sell the Delaware Canal to private operators. From 1866 to 1931, the Delaware Canal was run by the Lehigh Coal and Navigation Company. Traffic and revenue declined as the “iron horse” finally beat the mule, and the last paying boat locked through in October 17, 1931. The same day, 40 miles of the Delaware Canal was deeded to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. It was named Roosevelt State Park by Governor Gifford Pinchot, to commemorate his fellow preservationist, Theodore Roosevelt.

In 1940 the Commonwealth acquired all 60 miles of the canal. By popular demand, the park was renamed Delaware Canal State Park in 1989. The significance of the Delaware Canal was recognized in 1978, when it was designated a National Historic Landmark. The 60-mile Delaware Canal is the only remaining continuously intact canal of the great towpath canal building era of the early and mid-19th century.

Today

The Canal has become an important scenic and recreational resource. In recent years floods have devastated the canal, but the Commonwealth is committed to restoration. In addition the Delaware Canal has an excellent advocacy group, the Friends of the Delaware Canal, which continues to devote its energy and resources to a fully-watered canal. As of this date, twelve different flood repair and capital project contracts are in various stages of completion. The reconstruction plan involves installing a stable core material within the bank, providing a liner that is more reliably impervious than clay, and laying down a trail surface that will be less prone to erosion. The towpath trail surface will be “stabilized turf.” It consists of 85% stone aggregate mixed with 15% topsoil seeded with a special non-clumping grass. The stabilized turf will not be as smooth as the argillite gravel trail, but will hold together better in a flooding situation.

Approximately 8 miles of the Delaware Canal traverse through Solebury Township with several access points including the Virginia Forrest Recreation Area, providing abundant recreational opportunities in a bucolic peaceful setting. So take a stroll or bike ride on the towpath and enjoy lovely views of the Delaware River, historic homes, and the wildlife in this unique State Park and National Historic Landmark.

Music of Solebury

If you are reading this newsletter, you already know how special Solebury Township is. You know it is seeped in history and was and is home to many artists. But did you know that a number of famous musicians also called Solebury Township their home? Those lucky members who attended our annual meeting enjoyed a concert featuring songs by these musicians. Pianist Bill Gottshall, accompanied by singer Beverly Brown, put on quite a show, which took place in a renovated barn that was not only full of charm, but constructed for near perfect acoustics. Here is some background on these famous musicians of Solebury.

Moss Hart

Moss Hart was born in New York City in 1904. Family finances forced him to drop out of high school and take a job as a clothing folder at a garment factory. He was so enterprising that his boss agreed to let him write and produce a musical review to highlight the company’s clothing line. A few years later, Hart took a job as the entertainment director for a series of summer resorts in the Catskills.

Hart’s dream came true when he became part of the Golden Age of Broadway. Hart worked on Broadway plays and musicals with the greatest talents of his day, including Irving Berlin, Lerner and Loewe, and his lifelong friend and collaborator, George Kaufman. He created some of the best known musicals in Broadway history, including My Fair Lady (1956) and Camelot (1960).

Hart and his wife Kitty Carlisle, an actress and game show participant, lived in Solebury Township on Aquetong Road near the intersection of Route 202. It is known now that he suffered from long bouts of depression and although fathering two children, Hart was gay. Hart, who once said that all successful people in the theater came from unhappy childhoods, died in 1961.

Paul Whiteman

Paul Whiteman and his Orchestra was the most popular band of the 1920s and represented the apex of jazz to the general public. Paul Whiteman was one of the most important figures in twentieth century American pop music.

Eventually dubbed the “King of Jazz,” Whiteman grew into one of the biggest promoters of players, singers, and arrangers of all times.

Many well-known musicians got their first big boost in his band including Tommy and Jimmy Dorsey, Bing Crosby, Frank Trumbauer, Bix Beiderbecke, Johnny Mercer, Mildred Bailey, and Ferde Grofé. In 1924 Whiteman commissioned George Gershwin’s Rhapsody in Blue, which was premiered by Whiteman’s orchestra with Gershwin at the piano. In 1933, Whiteman had a #2 hit on the Billboard charts with the song, Willow Weep for Me. His band recorded more than 200 hits through 1936 that included Three O’Clock in the Morning, My Blue Heaven, Ol’ Man River, and Smoke Gets in Your Eyes.

Whiteman lived on Great Oaks Road in Solebury for many years. He died at the age of 77 in Doylestown.

Paul Simon

Born in Newark, NJ in 1941, Paul Simon of famed Simon & Garfunkle lived on Stoney Hill Road in Solebury for a number of years. His most well-known music includes Bridge Over Troubled Water, Still Crazy After All These Years and The Sounds of Silence. In the 60s and 70s, he made moving testimonials to the times, fusing folk and rock music. In the 1980s he pioneered a popular cross-cultural music that brought South African musicians into mainstream America. More recently, Simon finished his most ambitious project yet — The Capeman, a Broadway musical. Over his more than forty years in the business, Paul Simon has continued to bring an innovative voice to everything he does. He has won 12 Grammy Awards and is in both the Songwriters Hall of Fame and the Rock n’ Roll Hall of Fame.

Leon Redbone

Born in 1949, Leon Redbone is a singer and guitarist specializing in interpretations of early 20th-century music, including jazz and blues standards and Tin Pan Alley classics.

Recognized for his trademark Panama hat, dark sunglasses, and bow tie, Redbone first appeared on stage in Toronto, Canada, in the mid-1970s. Little is known about his background. Redbone has been called “the most famous non-famous American musician.” He has released fifteen albums and earned a sizable cult following who will travel significant distances to hear him perform. His concerts blend performance, comedy, and skilled instrumentals.

It is believed that Redbone is married to jazz producer Beryl Handler and has two daughters. The couple co-produced Redbone’s 2001 album Anytime. Redbone is a very private person. But we do know that he lives in Solebury Township.

Don Walker

Composer Don Walker arranged the scores for many Broadway musicals, including Fiddler on the Roof, Damn Yankees and The Music Man. He also scored a few feature films. In 1965, his score for A Thousand Clowns received an Oscar nomination. Walker also worked as a conductor on the television show Your Hit Parade and arranged music for Fred Waring & His Pennsylvanians.

Walker was born in Lambertville, NJ, and lived in Solebury township at Aquetong & Covered Bridge roads, a property known to this day as Harmony Hill. He died in 1989.
Armitage Road Walk highlighted famous residents

The group of walkers enjoy the amazing view from Marion Farms.

Roland Massimino greeted our walkers and provided details on the history and careful restoration of the former home of poet John Greenleaf Whittier.

Walkers enjoy the tranquillity as they stroll down picturesque Armitage Road.

Rhoda Renschler shares some history about her home where explorer Zebulon Pike lived as a child. Refreshments were served at the Renschler home.

Remembrances

The Society planted a tree on the schoolhouse grounds last fall in memory of Wallace Sellers, a long-time supporter who passed away in 2008. (l-r) Sally Jagoe, Barbara Sellers, Naudain Sellers.

Marge Elliott (left front) always enjoyed all the Society events. Marge passed away on December 20, 2008.

We also mourn the loss of Peggy Adams, a friend of the Society. Peggy republished the book Solebury Township by Col. John Richardson for the Society.
